

Truman Watched Silently

From Sidelines
In Independence
As Congressional Campaign Closes

By Ernest B. Vaccaro

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 5.—(P)—President Truman, champion of one candidate watched silently from the sidelines at neighboring Independence today as Kansas City's Democratic congressional candidates struck the final blows of a turbulent campaign.

Complaints and counter complaints of excessive spending and heated denials marked the climax of the race. With the presidential political prestige involved, the fifth district voters will write the verdict tomorrow.

Although he has endorsed Enos A. Axtell to unseat Representative Roger C. Slaughter, Mr. Truman has remained aloof from the hostilities since his arrival in Jackson county Saturday, maintaining both his silence and his distance from Kansas City.

He came home to vote in the fourth district with Mrs. Truman and their daughter Margaret, now 22, who will cast her first ballot tomorrow.

President Takes a Walk

Early this morning the president took a walk, stopping at the postoffice to chat with carriers and mail clerks. Later, he drove to Grandview to visit his mother.

Jerome Walsh, the third candidate in the three-way fifth district race, telegraphed an appeal last night to Speaker Rayburn of the U. S. house of representatives for a congressional investigation of campaign spending by both Slaughter and Axtell. He said it amounted to the "makings of a national scandal."

The reaction came quickly. Axtell, flatly denying Walsh's assertions, welcomed the proposed investigation, saying his expenses were well within the legal limits. Slaughter, calling Walsh's statement "ridiculous," insofar as he is concerned, added he would like to see an investigation of the CIO-Political Action Committee's spending in this and other campaigns.

In a Sunday afternoon radio address, Slaughter, who incurred the president's ire because of what Mr. Truman said was his opposition to administration legislation, said the CIO-PAC marked him for "a purge" long ago.

Attacks President's Action

He did not name the president in the speech but declared "I maintain that the congress of the United States must be independent of the executive."

denounce the practice of selecting Missouri candidates in Atlantic City, or New York or Washington," he continued.

The campaign, he said, "is being directed by Missouri Democrats, but by Communists and fellow travelers from the east."

National attention was centered on the contest when President Truman said he was against the renomination of Slaughter and that he had talked with James Pendergast, political organization leader here, in behalf of Axtell.

One or Other Wrong

Asserting that Slaughter had opposed virtually all legislation advocated by his administration, the president told a news conference that if Slaughter is right, he, the president, is wrong.

He has not seen Axtell, according to presidential press secretary Charles G. Ross, and has no plans to do so while here.

Policeman Kills Boys

SCRANTON, Pa., Aug. 5.—(P)—A single shot from a policeman's pistol killed a boy burglar in mid-air as he jumped from a second floor balcony of a dentist's home, shouting defiance.

The boy was identified early today as George Griffin, Jr., 16, of North Scranton, when his father telephoned police to report his son was missing.

Neighbors had seen the boy crawling into a basement window and summoned police. Policeman Frank Golden fired the shot.

Young children who are patients at Bothwell hospital will have more cheerful surroundings, as a pre-school room has been fitted up and decorated with a colorful border, just below the ceiling, of Walt Disney characters. The baby in the picture is Frances June Granfield, eight-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Granfield, 1103 East Third street, who is hospitalized for medical treatment. (STAFF PHOTO)

United States And China Back British

To Solve Deadlock
On Conference
Voting Procedure

PARIS, Aug. 5.—(P)—The United States and China today threw their support behind a British compromise proposal to solve the deadlock in the Paris peace conference on voting procedure.

The British plan would permit the conference to make recommendations to the foreign ministers of Britain, France, Russia and the United States on the five peace treaties either by a two-thirds or simple majority vote. A British spokesman explained that a proposal voted by two-thirds of the conference would be regarded by the four foreign ministers as a "firm recommendation." A recommendation voted by a simple majority would carry less weight.

Secretary of State Byrnes, taking the floor in the rules committee after a long wrangle in which representatives of the smaller powers argued for a rule to permit recommendations by a simple majority, said he had decided it was "the practical thing to do," to support the British suggestion.

Byrnes Will Go Along

Byrnes promised to support in the foreign ministers council in the decision voted by two-thirds of the conference, even though he had voted the other way in the conference.

He said there were 26 questions on which the council was not in agreement—"some of them very important"—and on which members of the council were not bound to vote together in the conference.

If the other members of the council would make the same offer that he had, Byrnes said, "it will be the conference rather than the foreign ministers council which will write the treaties" on the questions on which the council is not in agreement.

Police Warning to Bicycle Riders

Bicycle owners and riders are warned by the local police department to cease riding their wheels on sidewalks, especially at night. All bicycles must have lights on them if ridden after night, in accordance with a city ordinance.

Numerous complaints have been received by the police in the past few days of riders using the sidewalks instead of streets, especially after dark. Several near accidents were reported where wheels nearly struck pedestrians.

Russian Correspondents May Enter Japan

TOKYO, Aug. 5.—(P)—General MacArthur has approved a request for the entry into Japan of five more Russian correspondents, his public relations officer announced today.

The five include two from the Soviet army newspaper, Red Star, and a radio correspondent. Two Tass men already are here.

(Recently the Soviet command of the North Korea zone, occupied by Russia, declined a request for American correspondents to enter that zone.)

Campaign to Voters of Major Parties

Vote Tuesday
From Senator to County Officers

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 5.—(P)—Candidates for nomination to offices ranging from the U. S. senate to county posts today prepared to turn the campaign over to the voters of the major parties in Tuesday's primary election.

The campaign, with the U. S. senatorial nomination as the only statewide race at stake, has been generally quiet except for the three-way tussle in the fifth congressional district, where President Truman intervened to support the Pendergast-backed Enos Axtell against Rep. Roger C. Slaughter and Jerome Walsh.

The voters will select nominees in 12 other congressional districts, the even numbered state senatorial districts and all the state representative districts.

Predicts Light Vote

Noting generally widespread voter apathy, Secretary of State Wilson Bell, predicted a light vote, probably less than 500,000. He expected the total Democratic vote to be no more than 200,000, compared with 336,000 cast in the gubernatorial primary in 1944. He estimated the Republican turnout to be equally light. Republican candidates polled 309,000 votes two years ago.

Among the Democratic voters will be President Truman, who flew to his Independence home last Saturday; Mr. Truman and their daughter, Margaret, who will be voting for the first time. Although he is supporting Axtell, the president will not get to vote for him, since he lives in the fourth district, where Rev. C. Jasper Bell is seeking his seventh term in congress. Bell's opponent is John W. Schwartz.

Senatorial Race

In the race for the Democratic senatorial nomination are Senator Frank P. Briggs, Macon publisher, who succeeded President Truman two years ago; B. Marvin Casteel, former army colonel and state highway patrol superintendent; and Robert I. Young, St. Joseph, a perennial candidate. Senator Briggs has strong organization backing, but because of Washington business was not able to make such an extensive campaign as Colonel Casteel.

On the Republican side, there are five seeking the nomination: James P. Kem of Kansas City, the only statewide campaigner; Earl H. Smith, who has the support of the state party GOP leaders in making his first bid for office. His opponents are William McKinley Thomas, St. Louis; Ray Mabey, Unionville, former state senator; William P. Elmer, Salem, former congressman and Herman G. Crosby, St. Louis.

Among the more spirited congressional races were those in the First and Second districts.

Other Races

In the first three Republicans are opposing incumbent S. W. (Wat) Arnold, Kirksville lumberman. They are Henry S. Beardsley, Chillicothe; Frank Summers, Memphis and Sidney L. Phillips, Kanoma.

In the second there is a three-way battle for the Democratic nomination to oppose Rep. Max Schwabe, automatic Republican nominee in the general election. They are state representative Marvin M. Wright, Salisbury; Ike Skelton, Lexington and Will L. Nelson, Jr., son of a former congressman.

Miss Briggs Not Serious

MOBERLY, Mo., Aug. 5.—(P)—Miss Dorothy Briggs, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Frank P. Briggs, who was injured in a motor car accident early Sunday morning, today was reported by her physician to be "doing nicely."

The senator, advised that the condition of the 18-year-old girl was not serious, decided to carry on his campaign schedule today, calling for speeches at Armstrong, Fayette, New Franklin, Booneville and Columbia.

Miss Briggs suffered a broken jaw and cuts on the face and neck.

A companion, Betty Lou Powers, received leg cuts and suffered from shock. Both were taken to a Moberly hospital.

Three motor cars were involved in the accident, in which the machine driven by Miss Briggs overturned.

Senator Briggs, who is seeking renomination, said his daughter's condition would determine whether he completed his campaign tour.

The increase for cotton textile required under the new price control law, averages about 16 percent, OPA said.

The OPA added that this will boost the industry's returns by about $200,000,000 a year.

Bradley Talks To Spanish War Veterans

Discusses Veterans
Training Program
And Employs

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 5.—(P)—General Omar D. Bradley, administrator of Veterans Affairs, said today that "unless preventive action is taken in on-the-job training by both state and federal governments, there is danger that a national scandal may be in the making involving millions in federal funds."

In a speech prepared for delivery before the 48th annual convention of the Spanish war veterans and broadcast over a nationwide (CBS) network, Gen. Bradley declared:

"The Veterans Administration has reached the point where it must reconsider the objectives of its program.

"Even without recent reports on job-placement training, it is apparent that something is wrong. Something is wrong when an on-the-job trainee can collect a $400 monthly wage in addition to subsistence—while a college student with wife and child must forfeit his $90 a month to take a full-time job for family support. Something is wrong when it takes three years to learn to become a stock clerk in one state and three months in another. Something is wrong when a training establishment lowers the beginning wage of its trainees by an amount equal to their subsistence allowance."

"Both these dangers—the dishonest employer and the unthinking veteran—have already infected the program of many states."

Often Overzealous

"In addition, the situation is sometimes aggravated by the overzealousness of various government agencies in selling on-the-job training to business. . . . It is because these dangers do exist that we have become concerned."

General Bradley said congress had approved his recommendations for a national system of standards for training to be applied by each state, for a ceiling on the earnings of veterans receiving government subsistence and arranging for payment of subsistence to all full-time students, whatever their extra employment, provided their monthly earnings do not exceed ceiling for on-the-job training.

Apology to Truman

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Aug. 5.—(P)—Robert Semple, New Zealand works minister, today withdrew a statement he made at a public political meeting last night that President Truman was the "tool of money gangsters."

Semple explained that he had assumed the president was responsible for lifting price controls, but "subsequently learned that he had supported a policy in the best interests of the people."

U.S. Newsmen Testifies at Tokyo Trial

Tells How Jap
'Tourists' Were Well Armed

By Lynn Heinzerling
PARIS, Aug. 5.—(P)—Soviet Russia balked today at a British-American proposal to compromise the peace conference dispute over voting procedure.

Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov told the rules committee the proposal was objectionable because it was "calculated to upset the decision of the council of foreign ministers and replace it with a new one."

By Tom Lambert
TOKYO, Aug. 5.—(P)—An American newspaperman who lost portions of his feet because of mistreatment in a Japanese prison camp, limped to the witness stand today at Tokyo's big war crimes trial and gave first hand evidence intended to prove that the infamous Mukden incident of 1931 was a Japanese frameup.

Helped to the chair and with crutches leaning against the witness box, J. B. Powell went behind the scenes of the railway blast which Japan used as a springboard of Asiatic conquest after blaming it on China.

He had gone to Manchuria to report the incident for his China weekly review, the Chicago Tribune and the Manchester Guardian.

Powell said hordes of Japanese "tourists" had entered Mukden shortly before the blast and he obtained several pictures of them, showing they carried guns and wore arm bands identifying them as Japanese reservists. Only five days after the incident, Powell found Japanese in "complete occupation" of Mukden with Lt. Gen. Kenji Doihara, one of the trial defendants, acting as mayor.

No Evidence of Blast

Powell testified that he examined the blast site within a week of the incident and "there was no evidence of blast."

He said that the bodies of three Chinese soldiers were sprawled alongside the railroad with their heads pointed away as if they had been killed while running from the scene.

Powell's testimony drew such heated objections from defense attorneys for Hideki Tojo and 26 other accused top ranking war criminals that the president of the international tribunal sharply reprimanded counsel.

"We won't allow you to say another word," Sir William Webb said at one point to Maj. George Furness, of New York when the defense attorney sought to argue a Webb ruling.

Warned To Be Careful

Powell, long a critic of Japanese expansionist policies, said that correspondents covering the Mukden incident at first encountered "very little" hindrance but later were restricted and that he was told by a clerk in a telegraph office he should "be careful" or he would be killed.

Powell became crippled after he contracted gangrene in prison following his arrest in Shanghai in December, 1941.

New Polio Case In St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 5.—(P)—One additional poliomyelitis case was admitted to the isolation ward at City hospital Sunday, bringing the total to 30, said Dr. Cyril J. Costello, medical director.

Five of the patients are in critical condition. Dr. Costello said the disease here is not of epidemic proportions.

At Eldon, Mo., the Miller county fair board postponed today's scheduled fair opening because of the "impending spread of poliomyelitis" and "in accordance with a state board of health warning."

Board Vice President J. R. Thomson said Miller county had no cases, but there were some in neighboring counties. He said the fair might be held in the autumn.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 5.—(P)—Martin Aaron, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Aaron, died last night in a hospital of poliomyelitis. The boy, who first became ill last Monday at a Boy Scout camp at Osceola, Mo., was Kansas City's eighth fatality.

Two Sedalians who are polio patients, Bennie Morrison, being cared for at his home, on East Fourth street, and Freddie Busker, in St. Luke's hospital, Kansas City, are both getting along nicely.

Decide On May Friday

Sen. Mead States
Physician Will Then
Give Information
On May's Condition

By John W. Henderson
WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(P)—Chairman Mead (D-NY) said today the Senate War Investigating committee will decide Friday what further action it may take to bring Rep. Andrew J. May (D-Ky) before it for testimony in its war profits inquiry.

Mead told a reporter that May's return to his home in Prestonsburg, Ky., does not change the committee's desire to hear from Warren Magee, May's attorney, on when he believes his client will be able to testify.

In Prestonsburg, Dr. John Archer, May's physician, described his patient as "in the worst physical condition in which I have ever seen him." Dr. Archer said May is suffering from "general collapse" which prevents any activity for "at least two weeks."

Conferences Delayed

Mead delayed until tomorrow conferences with Attorney General Clark and Internal Revenue Commissioner Joseph D. Nunan, Jr., about income tax records of the Garsson munitions combine officials.

Mead has indicated the committee wants to look at May's income tax returns, since he was listed as Kentucky fiscal agent for the Cumberland Lumber Co., a combine affiliate. May, chairman of the house military committee, has said he profited in no way from his wartime efforts in behalf of the combine.

The newest proposal for the committee's consideration was a request by Senator Taylor (D-Ida) that it inquire into what Taylor termed "depreations on the national treasury" by the Nation's railroads in the form of "ex

Major League Attendance 12,788,000

Cardinals Win One Game And Lose One

By Joe Reichler
(Associated Press Sports Writer)
The major league attendance figures soared to 12,788,000 today—nearly two million more than last year's record total—following a splendid Sunday turnout featured by Cleveland's standard, 75,959 crowd of which 74,592 paid. The throng which filled Cleveland's municipal stadium for a glimpse of its pitching idol, blazing Bobby Feller, almost witnessed a tragedy when the speedball king was forced to leave the field in the seventh inning of the first game of a scheduled double header with the New York Yankees when he pulled a back muscle. Feller's injury later was described as not serious and the Tribe expected him to take his regular turn next Thursday.

Spoiled Scoreless Duel

Feller's abrupt retirement spoiled a thrilling scoreless duel with the Yankees' Floyd (Bill) Bevens. With Feller out of the way, the Yankees went on to win 2-0, getting the winning run in the ninth inning off Bob Lemon. The second game was halted by rain in the top of the second inning. Another fine crowd of 49,425 saw the American League leading Red Sox knock Detroit's Hal Newhouse from the hill for the third time this season and plaster him with his fourth defeat against 20 victories as the Sox trimmed the Tigers 9-4. The Yankees left the Red Sox 12 games in front of the Yankees.

Brooklyn Increases Lead

Brooklyn increased its National League lead over the second place St. Louis Cardinals to two full games by winning a close 5-4 game from the Cincinnati Reds in 14 innings.

The Cards lost a half game to the Dodgers when they could do no better than gain an even split with the Philadelphia Phillies. The Redbirds won the opener 7-0 behind the two-hit shutout pitching of Murry Dickson, but Howie Pollet went down to his sixth defeat in the nightcap when Jim Tabor found him for a 12th inning home run which gave the Phils the game 3-2.

Schoolboy Rowe, Phils second game starter, suffered a groin injury chasing a ground ball in the ninth and was forced to leave the game.

Coming from behind in each game, the Boston Braves twice defeated the Chicago Cubs, 6-5

Once Nation's Biggest Single Business, Air Industry Shrinks to a 20th of Peak

By Marc J. Parsons
NEA Staff Correspondent

The aircraft industry, which only two years ago was the nation's biggest single business, today has shrunk to one-twentieth of its war time peak and industry experts see little hope that it will approach anywhere near its top production levels again for years to come.

Present production in the industry is about five times that of 1937, however.

Peacetime military production certainly will be nowhere near the 96,369 planes built for the Army and Navy in 1944. This year less than 2000 military planes will be built, only about two-thirds of the absolute minimum recommended by the Air Coordinating committee to maintain an industry capable of meeting the threat of attack.

Skills Forgotten

Nor will civilian production fill the gap. The Aircraft Industries Association fixes civilian production for 1946 at $125,000,000 for transports, $40,000,000 for conversion of existing planes and $50,000,000 for personal planes.

Under such a program, aircraft plants have been closed one by one. And with the closing of plants, with workers and technicians scattering to other industries, the potential of sudden expansion in plane production is seriously hampered.

Already employment in basic aircraft plants has dropped from 1,383,000 to 150,000. Skills learned under the pressure of war are being quickly forgotten.

Busy Week for Eisenhowers

RIO DE JANEIRO, Aug. 5.—(AP)—A busy week of receptions faced Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower today as he and his wife rested after their tumultuous welcome at the Santos Dumont airport yesterday, during which they received a 21-gun salute and other honors usually reserved for chiefs of state.
Later today the U. S. Army chief of staff will call on President Eurico Gaspar Dutra at Catite palace and visit the foreign, war, navy and air ministries. Tonight he will be tendered a reception by U. S. Ambassador William D. Pawley.

The American Legion Ramblers defeated the Windsor Red Sox Sunday at Liberty park by the score of 9 to 7. Bus Walker on the mound for the Ramblers went the distance after being hit hard the first part of the game. He received poor support but after the fifth inning, settled down, allowing only three hits and no runs the last four innings. Swisher, pitching for Windsor, pitched a good ball with the exception of the third inning when three hits, a double, triple and a single scored two runs and in the fifth inning when three hits and a walk scored three runs. In the eighth inning a double by C. Thompson, a triple by Waters and a home run by Harry Light counted with a walk, scored four more for the Ramblers.

The Ramblers were trailing until the fourth run rally in the eighth. Windsor made a triple play in the fourth inning. This victory was the twentieth of the season for the Ramblers against ten defeats.

The Doctor Says

Dr. O'Brien
Written for NEA Service

Only a small percentage of skin eruptions on the hands and the feet are due to fungi. Most of them result from poor hygiene, or from treatment with medicines in an effort to get rid of "athlete's foot."

The average patient with burning, itching toes has digits which are close together. Fat footed persons are especially liable to irritation, because they retain heat and moisture between the toes. Fungi collect under such conditions, on the surface, and they are not actually responsible for the condition.

The toes which cause the most trouble are the fourth and fifth, although skin irritation can develop on the side and under surface of the foot (rarely on the top or over the toes). Irritation is common in overweight persons.

Skin Blisters and Sheds

So-called "athlete's foot" patients show crops of small blisters which run together and form large blisters. When the skin is broken it slips off, leaving an angry red surface from which fluid escapes. Itching and odor are the chief complaints. Infection with skin bacteria may produce disabling complications.

Foot hygiene for those whose toes are placed close together should include a daily bath, with thorough cleansing of the space between the toes and of the sole of the foot. Gentle rubbing with a towel to dry the spaces thoroughly is important.

Any powder may be used, as the base is more important than the medicines which are included to "kill" the fungi. Clean stockings should be worn daily, and shoes should be permitted to dry after being worn.

In ordinary skin irritation between the toes a few fungi are present, but they disappear with the practice of better hygiene. The majority of cases are not contagious, and there is little evidence that the foot baths employed in swimming pools are of value.

Burning, itchy toes are most apt to develop in nervous people. Scratching only makes matters worse. Constant attention to the toes also aggravates the condition, which improves if treatments are stopped.

Very Common Affliction

About two-thirds of the young men, and almost as many of the young women, examined at a midwestern university health service had "athlete's foot." The roommates of many so afflicted escaped the "contagion" by practicing better foot hygiene or by having separated toes which were kept dry.

Itchy blisters similar to those found between the toes may develop on the hands of individuals suffering from "athlete's foot." Fungi rarely are found upon the hands in this condition, as it represents a skin reaction rather than a fungus infection.

True fungus infections of the feet, while uncommon, do occur. During the war, chemicals which can destroy fungi were developed. Analysis of a large number of remedies sold for "athlete's foot" revealed that they contained drugs to which the patients using them were sensitive.

QUESTION: Every summer I am badly bitten by mosquitoes and insects. Is there any specific type of blood that these insects thrive on? What can I do to prevent the bites?

ANSWER: There is no specific blood which attracts mosquitoes and insects. Some people react excessively to their bites because of skin sensitivity or nervousness. Purchase a good insect repellent at your drug store and use it as directed.

(Pitch-Hitting For Hugh Fullerton, Jr.)
NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Just so there'll be no argument later, a check of the records shows Rube Waddell's 1904 strikeout record is 347. Not the 343 the book lists. So Bobby Feller, with 248, has 101 to go. Assault and Honeymoon will tangle finally in the American Derby at Washington Park this month.

Can He Croon Too?

Sam Sneed never poses for pictures with his hat off. The reason? Well, we're not telling, but Jimmy Demaret calls Sam "Old Bald Dome." When Sam had to pose at the St. Andrews presentation after winning the British open, he showed up with his "lid" still on. "This," he explained to the puzzled dignitaries, "is the only thing Bing Crosby and I have in common."

Cleaning The Cuff

Lippy Durocher, in the Dodger house organ, says he wouldn't bench Eddie Stanky even if he had both Hornsby and Frisch in their prime. That Brooklyn gets you sooner or later. Eh, Lipp! The Stanford golf team which came east on its own to the NCAA tourney, hasn't received any reimbursement from the school, even though it won the title. Egoner Hanover, unbeaten three year old, Blue Again, winner of the Santa Anita grand pace, are top candidates for the $25,000 National Pacing Derby at Roosevelt Raceway on Long Island in September.

Keep Moving—You're a Target

From an Oklahoma U. football publicity handbook: The Sooners' football schedule isn't really a schedule; it's a tight wire. It begins against Army, still powered by Glenn Davis and Doc Blanchard, and closes against Oklahoma A. and M., which only has Bob Fenimore.

Doc and Glenn and Fenimore will make the Sooners' smiles much littler.
And what they'll do to Oklahoma U. Should have happened to A. Hitler.

We're standing in line for materials, too

Most materials are hard to get. Some are available only in limited quantities. Others can't be had at all.

With you, it's butter and sugar and shirts and many other things. With us, it's copper and steel and lead and lumber and brass and textiles—and many other things.

A few months ago it looked as if things might be getting better. But disturbed conditions have tightened up the supply situation. In the past few weeks, shortages of materials have been more critical than during the war.

We have found many substitutes, made some old materials do, and practiced all kinds of short cuts to meet a situation that is far from normal.

Even though our program has been slowed down by conditions beyond our control, you can depend on this—

We're moving just as fast as we can, and as supplies improve, we'll get going full tilt.

INDIA; Filth and Famine:

Bengal's 60 Million People Have Food Fitters That Verve on Panic

Sacred cows and human beings rummage for scraps of food in Calcutta, filthiest city in India and probably in the world, where provincial government maintains an "out-of-sight" attitude.

(Editor's Note: This dispatch is another vivid, first-hand word picture of the ominous threat of famine that hangs over India today, written for NEA Service by Mary Jean Kempner, whose war reporting for Vogue Magazine won her laurels as an able newspaper woman.)

By Mary Jean Kempner
NEA Special Correspondent
CALCUTTA, India (NEA)—In Bengal, the largest province in India and also the most corrupt, it is no wonder that today sixty million people have food fitters that verge on out-and-out panic. And it is no wonder that the government of India, in full realization of these panic possibilities, tries to maintain a strategic reserve of 250,000 tons of food grain over and above provincial working stocks, earmarked for Bengal in case of emergency breakdown.

Floods, Then Famine
This province, site of the devastating famine of 1943, in which more than two million people perished, has fallen down miserably in the central government's program of all-India food procurement. On top of this human failure is the monsoon, life-giver to India's crops, which has hit Bengal's over-generosity, flooding large areas and as a result aggravating food shortages by destroying rice and millets which otherwise would have been harvested in December.

To date the extent of the damage has not been completely estimated, although the Royal Air Force has been called out to survey the affected areas. To a near-starving India, hungry than ever before, and barely subsisting on maximum rations of 12 ounces of cereal grains per person daily, these floods might well touch off the panic, for India's only hope is in the next harvest and in the uncertain grain shipments from abroad.

Calcutta, Bengal's capital, is the filthiest city in India, probably in the world. Filth saturates the streets, spreading a coating of sum even in the best hotels, like the gloomy Great Eastern. It is filth so overpowering that it cannot be concealed even by a provincial government which seems to believe that an ounce of concealment is worth a pound of cure, or that what is invisible can't exist.

A good example of this out-of-sight attitude is the Home for Destitutes on the outskirts of Calcutta. Because there are few ticket-takers on Indian railroads, the poor and indigent travel with no soap. Kitchens are open as yet in Calcutta. The poor starve or are picked up by the indigent truck patrol. Soup kitchens are considered a menace by the local authorities, who claim that they act as a drawing card, attracting more people into the already overcrowded, over-crowded city.

Hysterical memories of 1943 have made the people of Calcutta philosophy of abundant generosity so typically Indian. This few rich and many poor, none of whom, by tradition, ever turn a beggar away. It is a national generosity that is strong throughout the country, and which has greatly facilitated the success of the government of India's food program.

But as one official sadly said, "Maybe it would have been more economic to let a million die and gain the world's food sympathy for 399,000,000 more."

Short Snorters Beat Democrat All-Stars

The Short Snorters and the Democrat-Capital All-Stars in a nine inning baseball game defeated the All-Stars 32 to 24. It was more of a track meet than a ball game from the start of the contest until its conclusion.

Four circuit drives were made by the All-Stars credited to Goretz and Kerns, with L. Harrell smashing out two. A like number resulted in homers by the Short Snorters with Walz, Rose, Owensby and Means getting them.

Walz was the hitter of the day getting seven hits out of eight times at bat on the Short Snorter team while L. Harrell led the All-Stars with four safeties out of seven trips to the plate.

Short Snorter battery: Miller, Means, Walz, Bergman and Monsees; for the All-Stars Kerns, L. Harrell and Nold, Kerns.

Shoe Dealer is Speaker at Rotary Club

deer or buffalo, he cut part of the skin and placed the pieces on the soles of his feet, fastening them with strips of hide and thus came into existence the first foot protector. Later he found that by adding layers of the animal skin to his sole he further improved his footwear. Still later the sandal, consisting of a sole fastened with strips of leather, served in the early days of man of ancient history and this crude form, with slight variations, was used for many centuries.

First Protection Only
At first, the speaker said, man wanted something for mere protection of his feet and later he wanted something to please both foot and eye and quite often the eye was more important. The old Egyptian sandals were made of reeds and straw, and more thought was given to appearance than to utility.

In the fourteenth century a boot for men was made that ran out into a point so long that this point had to be held up by a chain that was fastened to the wearer's leg. In many instances it looked more like a pointed stiff stocking, ornamented at the top with a tinkling bell or pom-pom, the speaker said. This elaborate affair was a badge of rank, the idea being that the longer the shoes a man wore, the more evident it was that he was a gentleman of means, not forced to perform physical labor. In England the style became so ridiculous that the English parliament found it necessary to legislate against it in 1462, banning all shoes with beaks more than two inches beyond the toe.

Square Toe Prevailed
After the long toe went out of fashion, Mr. Schaffer said, the square toe prevailed. It was said that Henry VIII was a sufferer from gout and to be comfortable he was in need of a shoe that was very wide across the toe. The royal bootmaker, charged with the duty of making his highness comfortable, set to work making a boot that was flared out at the vamp, and style designers soon found they could do something with the wide toe, too. The dandies of the age were padding around in shoes with a nine-inch toe spread and bright colored linings. They carried that style to extreme until in the reign of Queen Mary it became necessary to restrict the width by royal decree to six inches.

The first shoemakers in America were cobblers who traveled from town to town, staying with each family long enough to make shoes for all members of the family. Many cobblers were skilled in other trades as well, could sharpen knives, saws, axes, and found they could do something with the wide toe, too. ## Has Balanced Breakfast

Highlights of the Eldorado Extension club July meeting held in the home of Mrs. Cletus Allen were a talk on premier for friendship, undulant fever and foods for the family, demonstrating a balanced breakfast, by Miss Alice Alexander, distribution of pal presents, and a feed sack exchange. The program followed a contributive dinner.

Mrs. Forch Wolfe presided at the business session after the opening song, "Follow the Gleam." The club collect was then repeated in unison and Mrs. Dan Gordon led the devotional service. Roll call was answered by rules of etiquette often neglected.

The club letter was read by Mrs. Cletus Allen and Mrs. Jim Packer read the health letter and filled out health questionnaires for eighteen families. It was decided to postpone the August picnic until later because of the polio and it was voted that the club will enter a display achievement day and that each member will enter an exhibit in the Gift Shop division.

The meeting was closed with benediction. Mrs. Sallie Allen, Mrs. Stuart Allen and Miss Alice Alexander were visitors. Next meeting will be with Mrs. Dan Gordon as hostess.

Railroad Workers Bill Signed Into Law

By Max Hall
Associated Press Labor Reporter
(Substituting for James Marlow)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(P)—Railroad labor leaders are celebrating what they consider a momentous victory over the railroads.

President Truman has just signed a bill which increases the benefits received by the 1,500,000 railroad workers in the form of pensions, life insurance, unemployment insurance and sick pay.

It also raises the taxes of railroad workers and the railroads themselves, effective next Jan. 1.

The bill became law after a long struggle in congress, during which the rail unions worked for its passage and the Association of American Railroads opposed it.

The bill was introduced more than two years ago, in the house by Rep. Robert Crosser (D-Ohio) and in the senate by Senators Burton Wheeler (D-Mont) and Robert Wagner (D-N.Y.). For a long time it got nowhere. But this summer the house and senate approved it by large majorities.

Enters Into Elections
This being an election year, the labor leaders who sponsored the Crosser bill are working now for the re-election of congressmen who helped put it across and for the defeat of some who spoke against it.

The railroads say the new law is financially unsound. They say it is "discriminatory class legislation," benefiting a particular group. They also say it will add $100,000,000 a year to the operating expenses of the railroads.

The union leaders maintain that the act is perfectly sound, badly needed and conservative in its benefits.

These leaders in their publications constantly refer to what they call the "railroad lobby." For example, the April 6 issue of "Labor," a newspaper published by 15 rail unions, quoted a union leader as saying "the railroad lobby has waged a most unscrupulous fight." The May 18 issue said under an eight-column headline:

Assembling in Washington
"Labor has been informed by a gentleman who knows what is going on that more than 300 railroad lawyers and probably as many prominent railroad officials have already registered at Washington hotels and are interviewing members of congress.

On the other hand, the rail unions themselves were called "pressure groups" during the fight. Rep. Clarence Lea (D-Calif.), chairman of the house interstate commerce committee, said in a statement he thought it "inconceivable" that the house would have passed the Crosser bill without amendment "had there been no pressure groups involved."

In a speech opposing the measure on July 27, Lea said, "this is a 60-page bill, virtually written by a special group and in its own interest."

Results of Law
Here are the main things the law does:

1. It raises taxes in 1947. Rail workers at present pay a 3 1/2 per cent retirement tax, matched by another 3 1/2 per cent paid by the railroads. On Jan. 1 this tax will go up to 5 3/4 per cent on each party; in 1949 to 6 per cent and in 1952 to 6 1/4 per cent.

(Employees in other industries pay only 1 percent social security tax but their benefits are not as large as those of railroad workers. Railroad workers are not under the social security act; they are under the railroad retirement act and the railroad unemployment insurance act.)

2. It will pay regular pensions to widows of railroad workers, starting Jan. 1. Very few of these widows get pensions now, because the only way a worker had been able to assure his widow a pension was to accept a reduced retirement pension for himself.

Increase Benefits
3. It will immediately increase the benefits for total disability, and starting Jan. 1 it will raise the pensions for many retired workers in the lowest wage groups.

4. The unemployment insurance tax stays the same (3 per cent of the payroll, paid entirely by the railroads). But unemployment benefits are raised. Starting immediately, an unemployed worker can get benefits 26 weeks in a year, instead of 20. And the maximum payment is raised from $20 a week to $25.

5. In addition to unemployment insurance, the government will do something brand-new, starting July 1, 1947. It will pay railroad workers for time lost on account of sickness, accident, or maternity. Such benefits will be the same amount and duration as those for unemployment.

6. It will pay regular pensions to widows of railroad workers, starting Jan. 1. Very few of these widows get pensions now, because the only way a worker had been able to assure his widow a pension was to accept a reduced retirement pension for himself.

Starting immediately, an unemployed worker can get benefits 26 weeks in a year, instead of 20. And the maximum payment is raised from $20 a week to $25.

5. In addition to unemployment insurance, the government will do something brand-new, starting July 1, 1947. It will pay railroad workers for time lost on account of sickness, accident, or maternity. Such benefits will be the same amount and duration as those for unemployment.

6. It will pay regular pensions to widows of railroad workers, starting Jan. 1. Very few of these widows get pensions now, because the only way a worker had been able to assure his widow a pension was to accept a reduced retirement pension for himself.

Bombs Into Window Of American Legation

BEIRUT, Lebanon, Aug. 5.—(P)—Bombs exploded at the American legation and British consulate almost simultaneously last night in what police theorized was a demonstration of dissatisfaction with the British-American Palestine semi-partition proposal.

Considerable damage—but no casualties—resulted when two bombs were hurled through a window at the American legation. A wall was destroyed by a single bomb at the British consulate.

One person was arrested for questioning.

Stock Market Declines
NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(P)—The stock market, led by motors, generally backed into last session today with light profit cashing blamed mainly for the retreat.

Declines ran to 2 points or so after a slightly irregular opening. The ticker tape frequently was at a standstill. A few gains were retained here and there and extreme setbacks reduced in a number of cases at the close. Transfers for the full proceedings dwindled to approximately 700,00

Housewives Should Avoid Accidents In Canning Season

Wrong Ways Of Canning Often Cause Persons To Take Chances

Good Oat Crop In This County

A good oat crop has been harvested in Pettis County this year. With grain very hard to get, no doubt dairymen will want to use oats as a major part of the ration this summer and fall.

In general it is best to use a mixture of grains in the dairy ration rather than a single grain. However, oats come as near being a good all around cow feed as any single grain we have. Oats are bulky, and higher in fiber than most grains. They supply 71.5 pounds of nutrients per 100 pounds as compared to corn which carries about 80 pounds of nutrients per 100 pounds. Oats contain about 12 per cent crude protein.

For cows on good pasture or good hay, the following makes a good ration using oats as a major grain:

- Ground oats—600
- Ground corn—300
- Cottonseed or soybean oil meal—100
- Bone meal—15
- Sale—15.

Oats as well as other grains should be rolled or ground for feeding to dairy cows. Very fine grinding is not desirable. Calves under 6 months of age will make good use of unground oats.

Achievement Day Called Off By 4-H Clubs

In cooperation with the health committee of the Pettis County Medical Society and the State Board of Health, 4-H club achievement day was not held on August 1st.

In order to give club members an opportunity to exhibit things they have made and grown in their project work and in order that State Fair entries may be selected there will be exhibits of 4-H club work at Convention Hall, Liberty Park on August 15. Parents and leaders are asked to bring in the exhibits to be judged and entries selected for the Missouri State Fair. There will be no demonstrations, judging events, style revue, grooming or health tests on this day. 4-H club members are advised not to attend.

There will be exhibits in clothing, food preparation, food preservation, home service, home furnishings, farm handicraft (rugs, work and woodwork), farm electricity, home grounds, gardening, and entomology. The classes of exhibits will be the same as those originally scheduled for county achievement day.

To Use Danish System
The Danish system of judging the exhibits will be used. In this system the items in a class are selected according to blue, red, and white ribbon groups. Blue ribbon exhibits will be eligible to be entered at the Missouri State Fair.

Later in the season it is hoped that it will be possible to have a meeting at which time there may be agriculture and home economics demonstrations, judging events, style revue, grooming, and health contests. Such a meeting will be dependent upon the development of the polio problem in the county and in the state.

Arrange For Sale Of Fine Beef Cattle

Will Be Held In Clinton On November 12

Beef cattle men of Henry county and adjoining counties met in Clinton last Friday night, July 26 and organized an association to sponsor and conduct a sale of high quality purebred beef cattle at Clinton, November 12. Rolla R. Jones of Calhoun was elected president of the association of the 6 county area which includes Pettis, Johnson, Cass, Bates, Vernon, St. Clair and Henry.

John M. Sneed, Shorthorn breeder of Sedalia was elected vice-president. Wilfred Dugan, Angus breeder of Montrose, was elected treasurer, and J. Robert Hall, County Agent of Clinton, was elected secretary.

A director from each county will serve on a board to handle the affairs of the Association. The show and sale is scheduled to be held in the Robinson Sale Barn at Clinton, Tuesday, November 12. The cattle to be sold will come from Hereford, Angus, and Shorthorn breeds and will total about 40 head. The sale will be predominantly females between 10 and 24 months of age.

Cattle From Fine Herds

E. M. Woods of the livestock market department of the Missouri Farm Bureau Federation has been requested to select the cattle from the many fine herds of the beef animals in the above counties. Breeders wanting to sell animals through the sale are to list them at the county agents office in their respective county. Inspection work is to start the first of September. Colonels Junior Robinson and H. B. Long will action the cattle. Don Bowman, Fieldman of the Missouri Ruralist will serve as judge of the cattle the day of the sale.

The breeders present at the organizational meeting which was called by county agent, J. Robt. Hall, together with the county agents in the audience, were keenly interested in the sale as a means of getting new breeders started in business in this area. They were highly complimentary of the success of the bull sale in Clinton last spring at which the cattle averaged the highest in price of any of the state sales held during that week.

Henry Countians Present

Those present from Henry county were: Rolla R. Jones, Calhoun; Edward and Wilfred Dugan, Montrose; Arthur Garrett, assistant county agent and J. Robt. Hall, county agent. From Pettis county along with Mr. Sneed came Dick Monsee, Hereford breeder, and J. Morris, county agent. Johnson county, was represented by H. A. Shanks, Centerville, who had Hereford cattle in the sale last spring; Raymond Martin, assistant county agent. Bates was represented by C. C. McGinness and James N. Bradley, Rich Hill. Vernon county was represented by Headrick, Richards, Mo.; and John Burkholder, county agent in Nevada. St. Clair county was represented by Mr. Blair Williams of the Eld-Ridge Farm, Osceola; and Willard H. Nickel of Osceola. Cass county was not represented but reported that they would have cattle in the sale.

Excellent Desserts
Velva fruit is ripe fresh fruit, not cooked but pressed through a sieve. The fruit is sweetened with about one-third as much sugar as fruit. Combine the fruit with a little gelatin that has been softened in water and then freeze. A mild, sweet fruit is better if a little lemon juice is added. Pears, peaches, and other fruits that turn brown when exposed to air after peeling should first be put into boiling sugar syrup for about 3 minutes. Strawberries, raspberries, blackberries, red currants, cantaloupes, apricots, peaches, and pears served this way make excellent desserts.

The Daily Washington Merry-go-Round

PARIS, (by wireless) Aug. 5.—It's hot in the galleries of the Palace of Luxembourg. In the top gallery sit hundreds of newsmen—Chinese, Siamese, Greek, Indian, New Zealanders, watching a man speak far below. Newsmen from all over the world watching the peace. It's their feast. What's done here will affect their countries from Balthistan to Iceland, from Saskatchewan to Samoa, and they are watching.

Far below, under the klieg lights, sits Jimmy Byrnes—patient, polite Jimmy Byrnes—never leaving his seat, never failing to listen. . . . A man speaks into the microphone. He's interpreting Molotov. . . . In French. Another man speaks. He's interpreting Molotov in English. . . . It takes hours. When, you wonder, will diplomacy ever become demeritized? Fifteen years ago the Pan American Union adopted simultaneous and simultaneous translation. Delegates could pick up an earphone and get a speech translated simultaneously in English, French, Spanish, Portuguese, with no waste of time. . . . But the French don't go in for modernization. Diplomacy is just the same—it hasn't been changed since 1815. . . . The Vienna conference when the great powers divided up Europe and brought on more wars.

Paris today is depressingly the same. We invent modern methods of warfare. . . . Rockets that may reach the moon, atomic bombs that sink navies, germs that can destroy civilizations. . . . But the weapons of peace never keep pace with the weapons of war. . . . Nor do the diplomats who wield the weapons of peace. The same crowd which failed to head off the last war is here again—even some of the same crowd which sat in at the last Paris peace conference. . . . Look at their faces. Poker faces. No life, no lift, no passion for the peace they are negotiating, bored faces, preoccupied faces, bored with the endless translations. Bored with the whole boredom of diplomacy.

Not a man among them who lost an arm or a leg, who knows what it is to suffer on the battlefield. These are the men who are writing the peace.

Jimmy Byrnes is not bored. Polite, patient, precise Jimmy Byrnes sits on the front row—perhaps he is too polite, too patient. . . . You feel like shouting down at Jimmy. You wish you had a telephone to reach him there, way down below. You wish you could tell him:

"That was a great speech you made the other day, Jimmy, but finish it. Tell them the rest of the story. Tell them not only that the United States isn't going to remain isolated but that we're going to raise hell with anyone who blocks our path to peace. Tell them that millions of Americans are fed up with all this frittering; that millions of Americans mean business and will back you up in anything you do. Tell it to 'em, Jimmy."

But Jimmy seems so far away. Around the senate chamber of the Palace of Luxembourg are great, gold ornaments. Wood-carved, in ornate shapes, remnants of the lush days of the De Medicis. . . . If the French had only been smart. If they had only painted out the gold and substituted white crosses; then perhaps the bored diplomats sitting below would remember. . . . White crosses. . . . From Guadalcanal and Stalingrad, from Salerno and New Guinea, from Tobruk and the Rapido, from Normandy and Aachen. . . . Close your eyes and you can see them. . . . Thousands of white crosses. . . . The dead speak:

"We who lie here have nothing left to give. . . . To all your praises we are deaf and blind. . . . We may not even know if you betray. . . . The hope we cherished for mankind." . . . But the diplomats below don't seem to hear. . . . Men in red plush seats, fastidious men in red plush seats, their nails polished, their cravats carefully tied. They don't seem to hear. They are thinking about procedure and majority votes, vetoes and prestige and whether they will get out in time to take tea.

One man does hear. He sits opposite Jimmy Byrnes. . . . A big, uncouth man, his hair is not even parted. . . . Evatt of Australia. His cockney accent is uncouth, but he dares to speak. He is the only man who comes anywhere near preaching the sermon on the Mount, who tells the bored men in the red plush seats that they must love their neighbors as themselves. . . . Unpleasantly Evatt steps on the toes of the big nations—tells them they have no business sabotaging the peaceful goal of others. . . . They don't like Evatt, but they like Jimmy Byrnes. . . . Even patient, polite, Jimmy Byrnes doesn't like Evatt. But he listens. . . . Thousand of men under white crosses listen, too.

Clement Attlee, prime minister of Britain, speaks—the man who performed the miracle of defeating war leader Winston Churchill—a modest man, a sincere, earnest man. His bald head shines under the klieg lights. But is his head halo. . . . Some hours before Attlee was haggling with Jimmy Byrnes over the future of Germany—bartering over the peace of the world, wanting to trade off a British policy in Palestine for an American policy in Germany. . . . Clement Attlee, labor prime minister of England, representing the dreams of millions, bickering over the "hopes we cherished for mankind." Thousands of white crosses, silent crosses, listening crosses. . . . "We have heard men say when we were living that some small dream of good would cost too much. But when the war came we have watched men giving and seen them move the mountains with one touch." . . . Peace, say the bored men in the red plush seats, is too difficult. If one could only shout to Jimmy Byrnes! If only he weren't so far away. If only he weren't so patient and polite. If he would only get up and be himself. . . . Can't you see, Jimmy, that peace is slipping through your fingers? . . . Can't you see that, instead of writing a peace, the world is choosing up sides for the next war? . . . Can't you hear the voices of the men who died on Okinawa and Leyte, at St. Lo and the Belgian Bulge—They'll never forgive you, Jimmy, if you let them down. . . . "What you let them down? But have no fear. If you fail now, we shall not see nor hear." This is the greatest moment of your life, Jimmy. You have been senator, supreme court justice, war mobilizer. . . . A great record. But if the peace of the world slips through your fingers . . . ?

Twenty-seven years ago, at the same place, in the same setting, at the same kind of peace conference, Clemenceau is supposed to have said: "Listen! I can hear the soldiers of 1940 weeping." Today, I can hear my sister's sons and all the sons of millions of mothers who put their hopes in you, Jimmy, I can hear them all over Paris. . . . weeping.

Race horses trained to run without jockeys attracted attention in Mexico, where this innovation in racing was made.

THE STORY: Cecily's wedding is over at last. But never will I forget the cruel thing I did to her. How can I explain to Corinna and Robert that they—my daughter and my husband—have been cheated all through the years for Cecily's sake? And that she wasn't worth it? Della Della hates me for what I've done to Cecily's life. But to her, the beginning. Della, Cecily's mother, is a strange one. She is very wealthy but she squeezes every cent. For instance, I knew she had her own reasons for the party she gave the poor Martin Street youngsters—the party that was given at my house because she was afraid they would starve. But I wasn't prepared for her fury when the newspaper credited me with the party and only Della Della as a guest. She said she had spent all that money just to impress Myrtle Ralston and now it had been wasted.

III
"WHY did you mention Robert and me at all?" I said, and my voice had an edge to it that I knew was dangerous.

"If you didn't want us to have any credit," I added recklessly, "why didn't you just say the party was held at your house?"
"I don't want Myrtle Ralston to think I have those Martin flats kids running through MY rooms!" Della said. "It would give her an excuse to say that the reason she doesn't call on me is because she's afraid of catching something!"

There it was—Della's rankling anger against the town's most prominent woman who was president of Cecily's school's P. T. A., and who had completely ignored Della's existence from the first day of their acquaintance.

Della was always rehearsing this grievance to me. "We go to the same church—our kids go to the same school and we live in the same block. Who does she think she is, anyhow? My house is bigger than hers and my car is a later model. I've got as many diamonds as she has! One of my ancestors was signing the Declaration of Independence before her family ever saw the inside of a schoolroom!"

Closed at Sundown

Gone Are the Days
Once the swankiest residential district of New York City, the three miles between Washington Square and 60th street now contain only six private residences, exclusive of apartment houses.

"What does it matter?" I argued ceaselessly. "You can have other friends, can't you?"
The trouble was, of course, that she couldn't. She could join clubs—and she did—but although the women were pleasant to her at the organization meetings, they did not call, they did not open their homes to her.

"I could buy and sell the whole bunch," Della said, contemptuously to save her pride.
"That's it, Della," I said once, trying to help her. "Those women have enough money so that it isn't the most important thing in their lives—"

"Like fun it isn't!" Della halted me. "They're simply jealous—and I'll give them cause to be!"
There was no use trying to reason with Della when she was determined to be unreasonable.

SHE called the newspaper and accused the editor of favoring the Ralstons with publicity to curry favor because Mr. Ralston was a political figure.
The editor, busy with the world's affairs, thought at first that he was being ribbed. After he decided his caller was in earnest he made an effort to be polite, but after a few more of Della's acrid personal comments he gave up and suggested that she cancel her subscription and let him get on with his work.

Della took him up on it, adding that his rag wasn't even remotely worth the seventy-five cents a month he had been exacting from her. Also, as a further vengeance on the P. T. A., she yanked Cecily out of public school and entered her in a private one for girls in the city, an hour's drive from home.

My heart froze, because I feared that meant Della would move to the city to be spared those hours in the car each school day, but nothing could have induced her to leave town while her score was still unsettled with Myrtle Ralston.

In the city Cecily took piano lessons, ballet, tap and ballroom dancing, drama, riding, swimming and fencing. It cost Della a fortune but she didn't care. She had her eye on some future goal that even I didn't see, although I did know that Mrs. Ralston's son was only two years older than Cecily.

Della tried to put the announcement in the paper that Cecily was launched on this breath-taking and guided program, but her name was on the editorial boycott list. The paper was not interested.

WELL, that was Della. That was one side of her, anyhow. Nursing her through her pretty griefs I found it hard to remember that she was capable of truly great love—but she was. In her devotion to Thorne, her invalid husband, she was like a creature transformed. Della had a mean tongue, but I have never heard her speak to Thorne except in gentleness and affection, and Thorne is often cranky and impatient with her.

"He never was until his illness," Della always excuses him.

Her love for Cecily is another item I've always remembered in trying to find good in Della to counterbalance the bad things.

Of course you could say from another standpoint that it is no credit to her to love Thorne and Cecily; they are hers and for Della whatever is hers shines with a resplendency bright enough to dim every law.

Della is fond of animals. Before Cecily arrived one of her neighbors, going to South America, asked Della to board his cat until he returned. He paid well for the favor.

The next time I dropped in the cat was curled up, a golden ball, in a wicker basket lined with blue satin.

"He's mine now," Della explained. Now that he was hers he could have the best.

The world's smallest postoffice is in the Straits of Magellan. It is a small painted cask chained to the rocks in such a way as to allow it to float freely. Passing ships send a boat to it to take letters out and put others in. It is under the protection of all navies of the world.

Peron—Friend or Foe;

U. S. Kid Glove Treatment a Big Controversy Among the North Americans in Buenos Aires

The man and the people: When it comes to Peron, the smiling Argentinian shown waving in the inset above, there is no middle road. People either follow him with rabid adulation, like the banner-waving street throng in the background, or they hate him bitterly.

(Editor's note: The following dispatch is the first of two on "Peron—Friend or Foe?" written by the Executive Editor of NEA Service, Inc., after a visit to South America.)

By BOYD LEWIS
NEA Staff Correspondent
BUENOS AIRES, (NEA) — The head man of Argentina, Juan Domingo Peron, is currently being given the kid glove treatment by the U. S. State Department but that policy is highly controversial in North American circles here.

Some elements point out that Peron, even though he holds the presidency through legal election, is the same man who was the dictatorial colonel behind the displaced Farrell regime. They say that some of his principal advisors are Spanish fascists and German Nazis and that he presents a smiling face toward the United States only to woo us into selling him guns, tanks and warships.

Other North Americans assert that Peron's hostility toward the United States was the result of our own "tough" diplomacy. They urge that we bring Argentina into the hemisphere family and do our utmost to patch up bad feelings. A key Peron satellite is Jose Figueroa, who by decree issued a few weeks ago received powers which make him in effect assistant president. He is a Spaniard who came to Argentina in 1930 after being advisor to the Iberian dictator, Primo de Rivera. He is a statistician and financial wizard.

Another financial expert in Peron's stable is Heinrich Doerge, a German citizen and former protégé of Germany's Hitler. Doerge, who was sent by Hitler to the United States in 1939, opening year of the war, and later to Chile. He arrived in Argentina in 1943 and displayed such unusual talents that Peron set him up in an office in the Central Bank building. Doerge has no official position. But no other outsider has a desk at the now-nationalized Central Bank.

Other Europeans now active in Argentina include: The Ludwig Freudes, father and son, Germans and alleged Nazis. Freude, Sr., applied for Argentine citizenship last year. The son is a close personal friend of Peron.

Ricardo Staudt, alleged "protection man" for Germans in Argentina and with wide export and import trade all over South America.

Hans Harnisch, German military intelligence chief for South America.

Johannes Siegfried Becker, Nazi party leader for South America.

Back in the Fold
The current State Department policy overlooks these men in order to achieve the aim of "bringing Argentina back into the hemisphere."

A high diplomatic source put it this way:

"It is essential that we bring Argentina into the hemisphere. We are still trying to do something that we should have done in the first place."

This source—it is only fair to Ambassador George Messersmith to say that it was NOT he—then proceeded to draw an analogy. He said that he could not blame Peron for resisting our efforts to make him fire his fascist associates.

"I like to draw this analogy," this informant said. "I say to my friends, suppose you were the publisher of a newspaper and an advertiser came to you with a proposal that you discharge a half dozen of your most valued employees. The advertiser explains that he has purchased space in your newspaper for many years and now he objects to the manner in which some of your writers handle news material. He asks you to fire them. You refuse, of course."

This glib explanation stung listeners into an objection that a parallel between newspaper reporters and Peron's German and Spanish associates was hardly accurate. Thus pressed, the diplomat conceded that his analogy perhaps ought to be regarded as the kind of rationalization which Peron himself might offer for failure to get rid of his fascist buddies, rather than as a bona fide explanation which would be acceptable to the U. S.

This is the sort of thing which bothers opponents of Peron. They assert that today's situation in Argentina, far from disqualifying the tough policy of former Ambassador Spruille Braden, actually upholds his stern tactics. They contend that had it not been for Braden, there would have been no elections and Argentina still would rest under a military dictatorship; there would be no congress, there would be no freedom of the press. They assert that Braden organized almost half the voters of Argentina against Peron and, had he not been withdrawn, might have swung the majority against Peron.

Error of Intervention
Proponents of the new and more moderate U. S. policy say, however, that outside interference is bound to react in favor of the person opposed; that election returns showed the error of our intervention in domestic Argentine affairs.

These quarters are inclined to discount popular fears of Peron's associates and portray him as a sort of Argentine "New Dealer," striving to better the lot of the working masses and opposed by entrenched capital just as Franklin Delano Roosevelt was in the United States.

It is certainly true that Peron has bettered the lot of large numbers of workers. He has raised wages and awarded bonuses with a liberality never before seen in this continent. Labor unions, formerly insignificant, now are powerful—and every union leader is a red hot, dyed-in-the-wool Peronista.

In one respect Peron is like Roosevelt; people either follow him with rabid adulation or hate him bitterly. There are no middle-of-the-roads on the Peron question—and that question is debated wherever people gather in Buenos Aires. That, at least, is a healthy sign.
